

Andrea:

Below is the statement from the university:

“CSUN was made aware today of the lawsuit against Dr. Dennis Kelly relating to his work at USC. At this time, we are not aware of any complaints against Dr. Kelly from any member of the CSUN community. The health and safety of our students is our top priority. We take the disturbing allegations by the former USC students, as well as any sexual assault, battery or harassment allegation against anyone at the university, seriously. CSUN is conducting its own investigation into Dr. Kelly’s work at the university. Out of an abundance of caution, while CSUN is investigating this matter, Dr. Kelly has been placed on immediate administrative leave. Anyone who has any concerns regarding interactions with Dr. Kelly are encouraged to contact CSUN’s Office of Equity and Diversity at equityanddiversity@csun.edu or \(818\) 677-2077.”

In answer to your other questions: Dr. Kelly is a men’s health physician, employed since October 2002. He works six hours a week.
